

Society for Low Temperature Biology

AUDREY SMITH TRAVEL AWARDS

The Audrey Smith Travel Fund provides support for members of the Society For Low Temperature Biology to attend conferences and meetings where they will present work in an area appropriate to the Society. Preference will be given to members wishing to attend SLTB meetings. The award is aimed primarily at researchers new to the field (normally MSc, or PhD students, or researchers in the first year of their first post-doctoral appointment) and technical staff, or support scientists for whom funding for meeting attendance is problematic. Applicants should either be a registered student, or have been a member for 1 year.

To apply, please complete the form below and send together with supporting documentation to the Society's Secretary at least one month before the meeting for which support is being sought.
